My fondest memory is the time when I was just a fresher. Guru Randhawa was my favorite singer at that time and I would always wish to see him in person someday. Surprisingly, he came to our college for an Event. I simply can't think of anything better than this.

I reminisce the day we rallied in our college with the NCC cadets on the sports day. I feel proud to represent Gargi in sports every time.

Gargi itself will always be a beautiful memory I will cherish. The journey from my admission here till this end has been the most remarkable of all. Enjoying all the college events has always been fondest of all and watching celebrities in college fest would always remain deep down the memory lane of my heart.

Gargi College has given me innumerable memories to cherish, but the one that's my favorite was when our college held Zistatva, the annual Diwali Mela. Being photographer for the day made me realize the efforts and pain one puts and I was fortunate to get the opportunity to capture every bit of it. Looking back at those captured memories makes me feel even closer to Gargi.

Winning the Co-Convener election against all the odds (though I am the convener of society this year), was something I'll always remember because I was the least active and least participative that year but everyone believed in me. Nailing it by 15-2 justified it all.

Life here has been an adventure with a bunch of memories to cherish. The first day in itself was exciting; in a new place with new people. Definitely, a lot has been learned and explored. The college canteen was my favorite of all (tasty food filled with a lot of gossip). The choicest memories would always be the annual fests; waiting for them is was even better!

It was winter time and we had a long gap between the lectures, so almost our entire section went to the sports ground where we had fun. Chit-chatting sessions and playing games would always be the best memories of college.
